'Environmental Elvis' to Perform at Green Village Event January 10th
Performer Saving the Planet – One Elvis Song at a Time

Plainfield, IL -- The 2011 Green Village Lecture Series starts with a bang – or at least, a hound dog – with a live performance by Green E, the Environmental Elvis, on Monday, January 10th, at 7 pm, at the Plainfield Public Library.

Elvis Presley fans and environmentalists alike are sure to enjoy the music of Chicago-area musician David Pyle, performing as Green E – The Environmental Elvis. Green E has performed in 26 states across the country, bringing his environmental message to such Elvis tunes as “Don’t Be Cruel” (“Don’t Waste Fuel”) and “Are You Lonesome Tonight” (“Are You Recycling Tonight”). Children, families, school classes, and youth groups will be delighted by the lighthearted, yet educational performance. For more information about Green E, visit his web site at www.greenelvis.com.

In its fourth year, the Green Village Lecture Series is a partnership between the Village of Plainfield and the Plainfield Public Library District to host monthly workshops with an environmental focus. Events are held the second Monday of each month, beginning at 7 pm at the Plainfield Public Library. Programs are free but registration is requested.
